VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1953

Police Scatter Crowd

GEORGETOWN (Reuters)—Riot police Thursday night prevented the first attempt to hold a mass meeting here since gatherings were banned under emergency regulations in the colony.

Police were doubled on Georgetown's waterfront following intelligence reports that subversive elements opposed to the forced resignation of the People's Progressive government of Dr. Cheddi Jagan have a definite arson plot.

A flying squad of 20 men armed with machine guns, rifles, clubs and tear gas, raced to Bourda Green—Georgetown's main park—where knots of people had gathered awaiting a signal to join up for a meeting.

Police said they had learned an unnamed leader of the People's Progressive party was to have addressed the crowd.

Mass meetings were banned in the tense situation following the suspension of the constitution last Friday, when the six ministers of the leftist party were ousted on grounds that the PPP was attempting to form a Communist state.

Picked police at the waterfront had orders to shoot on sight at any sign of trouble.

Police received information Thursday that subversive elements have a definite plot to fire the waterfront and laid in stocks of inflammable materials for the purpose months ago.

Earlier Thursday police raided about 20 houses—some of them belonging to teachers and civil servants—in their search to find evidence of an alleged plot to turn the colony into a Communist state. Books and documents were seized.

Happiness Reigns When Boy Returns

Most Money Spent On Liberal Campaign

B.C.'s four major political parties spent roughly $200,000 on the general election last June, it was disclosed last night.

A statement of campaign expenses was filed in the Legislature Thursday night by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, at the request of Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena).

Liberals were still the biggest spenders, with Social Credit close behind. Conservatives and CCF trailed far behind.

Total election expenses declared by the central committees of the four parties were: Liberals, $85,305; Social Credit, $68,505; Progressive Conservatives, $33,772; CCF, $11,979.

Tabulation of individual expenses of various candidates showed: Premier Bennett spent $2,754 to get elected in South Okanagan; Finance Minister Gunderson spent $3,798 on his campaign in Oak Bay, then lost out to Liberal P. A. Gibbs who spent $3,829.

The three Social Credit candidates in Victoria were elected at a cost of only $1,335 each, taking seats away from Liberals who spent from $1,873 to $2,073.

Social Credit managed to take two of the three Vancouver Point Grey seats at a total cost of $1,083. Liberals spent $11,650 in the riding and managed to elect only one member, party leader Arthur Laing.

Heaviest individual spenders were Liberals Le Sweeney and Anna Sproul, candidates in Vancouver-Centre. Each spent $1,500. Neither was elected.

There were no words, just kisses and happy tears for five-year-old Richard Poole, 1627 Burton, missing from home almost 24 hours Thursday. His mother, Mrs. Thelma Poole, 1003 Carberry Gardens, and Mrs. Charles Cluff, his foster mother, almost crushed the lad with affection when he returned at the peak of the 400-man search Thursday afternoon.

North Koreans Refuse To Listen

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Anti-Communist North Korean prisoners of war today refused to come out of their stockades and listen to Communist attempts to coax them back.

At noon the 1,000 anti-Red North Koreans scheduled to meet Red interviewers at 10 a.m. were standing fast in their compounds in the Korean neutral zone.

Indian troops surrounded the North Korean stockade but by noon had made no attempt to force out the prisoners.

It was the second day that anti-Communist prisoners had balked at attending explanation sessions. Thursday, however, 500 Chinese finally faced the Red interviewers after more than seven hours of hanging back. Only 10 of those went back to the Communist side.

The other 490 elected to stay on the side of the United Nations in a screaming face-to-face repudiation of Communism.

There were sporadic demonstrations—shouting, parading, singing—a man of the North Korean prisoners this morning. But observers said it did not equal the noise kicked up by the Chinese before they agreed to listen to explanations.

A spokesman for the Indian custodial command said Indian officers had met with the Korean prisoner leaders Wednesday night and obtained an agreement that PWs would listen to the Red explainers.

BCER Asked To Resume Richardson Bus Service

The city's public works committee has asked the B.C. Electric to resume the Richardson bus service, now abolished after 6 p.m., or provide some alternative.

Late Thursday night a police spokesman said the crime charged in the warrant is not an extraditable offense.

In September Montagu was reported ill and staying on the French Riviera. On October 6 it was announced he had left for the United States for special treatment.

Since then he has been reported living in Texas and to have visited his sister Caroline in Waco with her husband, who is the son of Garfield Weston, Canadian millionaire baker.

Company officials have agreed to "study" the matter but stated Thursday during a special meeting they could make no promises.

Also present at the meeting was a delegation of six residents from the Despard-Richmond-St. Charles area. Petitions protesting the cutting off of the evening service have come into City Hall with 400 names.

One petition contained 189 names. Most of the residents have suggested a "belt line" arrangement to provide them with some service in the evening.

Ralph Matthews, a B.C. Electric executive, explained to the committee that the dropping of the line was "purely a matter of economics." He said it was "the worst line in the company's system" as far as traffic was concerned.

Mystery Remains As Boy Returns During Search

Child Can't Recall Just What Happened

Mystery still shrouds the circumstances leading to the return home Thursday of a five-year-old Victoria boy whose disappearance touched off one of the largest searches in the city's history.

Police said late Thursday that a man earlier thought to have brought Richard Poole, 1627 Burton, back to the house was merely a city businessman looking at a vacant home for sale across the street.

Five-year-old Richard, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cluff, disappeared from his home shortly after 5 p.m. Wednesday. He returned mysteriously 22 hours later.

The boy, happy and unharmed, told his parents and police that he had been picked up the previous afternoon from the Clutha Park playground, where he was waiting to be called in for supper on Wednesday, by a "fat old man in a grey car."

Another Park
This man took him to another park and told him he was going to get "some more kids."

Later the man let him out of a car "near a lot of mailboxes and stores," he said. He was then picked up, he said, by a younger man, as yet unidentified, and returned to his home.

Police said Thursday night that the little boy had told the younger man he was lost and said he lived on Burton Avenue, arriving a few minutes after 2:30 p.m.

Police believe this driver who gave the youngster a lift may have been unaware of the huge search going on. They are convinced he had nothing to do with the boy's disappearance. He is asked to get in touch with city police so that investigating officers can fill in a few unknown facts.

WALKED INTO HOME
While more than 400 servicemen, civilians and police combed the Doncaster area for some trace of the little boy, he walked quietly into his home asking for his playmate, Ricky Lacey, who lives at 1549 Clutha.

"Where's Ricky?" he asked William Early, 1112 Fairfield, one of the many who took part in the search and spotted the lad peeking around a corner of the house.

News of the boy's return ended the search, but when Richard told his family "a man in a grey car" brought him home, another intense search was begun by police officials.

The search fizzled out shortly after when police checked up. It turned out that the driver of the car had been looking at a house for sale across the road from the Cluff home.

The man was amazed that he had been the object of a police search.

He said he saw a car draw up outside the Cluff home and noticed that a little boy got out.

Lady Astor Fails To Rush Princess

DEPTFORD, ENG. (AP)—Princess Margaret carried out her first public engagement since July, Thursday—and declined to be hurried through it by tea time or Lady Astor.

The princess was opening a new wing to a teachers' college here and dalled longer than scheduled over some needlework exhibits.

Lady Astor, chairman of the school's board of governors, tried to hurry things up by remarking that "the distinguished guests are starving. Do you think they might start tea?"

But the princess refused to take the hint—and after looking at her wrist watch carried on inspecting the stitching.

Trieste Dispute Quiet; Churchill, Dulles Talk

TRIESTE (AP)—Italy and Yugoslavia stood pat Thursday night in the mushrooming dispute over the free territory of Trieste, obviously intending to wait out a Big Three discussion of the subject in London.

Yugoslavia's ruling federal executive council, at a two-hour meeting in Belgrade, unanimously approved the stern measures President Tito has set in motion with the avowed aim of preventing Italian annexation of the territory's Zone A.

In Rome, Premier Giuseppe Pella told the British, U.S. and French ambassadors that Italy's position is unchanged. Pella said Italy will sit down to talks with Yugoslavia only if Italian troops are allowed into Zone A.

The Allied-occupied region which Britain and the United States decided last week to transfer to Italy's administration, or Yugoslav troops are pulled out of Yugoslav-occupied Zone B.

U.S. State Secretary Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault flew to London Thursday for talks with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on Trieste and other world problems.

Dulles talked with Churchill and Eden Thursday.

Alides reported Dulles and Eden may decide to delay the withdrawal of the 7,000 British and American troops in Zone A, originally planned to be completed by November 30.

Tito has declared any movement of Italian troops into Zone A to replace them would be aggression and threatened to use his armed forces, newly reinforced within Zone B, to bar them.

Italy has made it clear she is willing to give assurances that she will not use force in attempting to settle her territorial differences with Yugoslavia.

In New York, the UN Security Council debated a Russian demand that it take up again the matter of naming a neutral governor for Trieste, which was set up as a free territory under the Italian peace treaty of 1947.

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP)—RCMP said here Thursday night they had received a report that a fishing vessel was in distress near Cape Lazo off Harwood Island in Georgia Strait.

Immigration Ruling Could Divide Family of Five Among Three Countries

MONTREAL (CP)—The plight of a family of five, which may become separated in three countries, was related Wednesday in Superior court.

Attorney John M. Schlesinger, seeking a writ of habeas corpus, told Mr. Justice Andre Demers that, under a ruling of a board of inquiry of the immigration department the family would have no hope of reunion.

He claimed the board's decision will have these consequences: The American-born mother and her American-born son will have to live in the United States; the father and his Austrian-born son will have to return to Austria; the couple's Canadian-born son, 2½ years old, will have to live in Canada.

The family is that of Paul Walter Glazer, 34; Mrs. Glazer, 28; Austrian-born Tony, 7; U.S.-

born Richard, 10, and Canadian-born Gary, 2½.

In seeking habeas corpus proceedings and invalidation of the board's ruling, Mr. Schlesinger gave this history of the Glazer family:

Glazer fought against the Russians in the Second World War and after the liberation of Austria was stationed in the Eastern zone of Vienna. He was then employed by the U.S. Army as an interpreter.

Suddenly he was whisked away by the Russian police without explanation. After six weeks in Russia he was released. Some time later he met the woman he married. She was working in U.S. offices in Vienna and had a child, American-born, by a previous marriage. The family came to Canada in 1950, believing it would be dangerous for Glazer to remain in Austria. The family was given a temporary permit to remain here. Glazer found a good job; his wife stayed at home looking after the children. A few months ago, said Mr. Schlesinger, the board of inquiry gave its deportation decision. Representations were made to the immigration department and extensions were periodically granted. Later, the deportation order was made final. The attorney said the department gave no reasons for the order.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SOME hunters prate about the deer, pheasants and mountain goats they have bagged. That kind of game is all very well for marksmen who find a large target challenging enough.

As for me, however, I prefer something smaller, and faster-moving. I hate to brag, but I may as well come right out and say that my skill at my particular sport is the envy of all my friends. And it happens that I have had a good year.

Yes, the fly-swatter season just past has been, taking it altogether, a highly successful one.

My bag for the year was 25 wasps, 1,803 flies (including some difficult ceiling swarms), and one butterfly brooch, swatted by mistake.

All this was accomplished without the use of decoys of any kind, shooting over some difficult terrain, with hazards that included mountains of cardboard cartons, half-packed in preparation for our move to another house; three cats and a baby underfoot.

I have obtained some fine trophies, some of which are still mounted on the walls and ceiling.

My only worry is that there seems to be some danger of over-killing the game stock. Near the end of the season I walked the whole territory, from kitchen to bedroom and back again, without flushing so much as a gnat from cover.

Some thought will have to be given to stricter conservation, if there is to be good sport next year. Fly-swatter is no sport for the faint-hearted. More than one visitor to the house has lost his nerve in that tense moment when I am crouched in the armchair with my heavy-duty, double-thickness swatter at the ready, and my eyes—the cold, unblinking eyes of the born hunter—focused on my prey.

Sometimes the suspense is too much even for an experienced visitor. "Well, I guess I'll get going," the visitor says, cracking under the strain.

"What's the matter with you?" my wife asks after he has left. "You haven't spoken a word for 10 minutes, and you didn't even get up to say good-bye."

Flashing her scornful glance that the man of action reserves for the mere talker, I move in for the kill. Crack! The staccato slap of the fly-swatter smashes the silence.

Game to the last, the crippled fly attempts to crawl away, determined to spread his cargo of germs through the house. One more swift stroke, and it is all over for him.

I remember another time I was stalking an "old man" bluebottle, and he turned savagely. What's that—you'd rather put up flypaper and be done with it? Well, if that's the kind of sportsman you are, we had better close the subject.

Letter to the unknown lady who, according to the United States Internal Revenue Service, had a net income of more than $2,000,000 in one year after paying $4,309,000 taxes on a total of $6,413,000. Darling:

You may wonder why I am writing you a love letter. It is true that I have never seen your face. But your figure!

We could have such a wonderful time together, skipping hand-in-hand through the safety deposit vaults; having long, intimate talks about exciting things, like the rates of return on rail, industrial and utility stocks.

It says in the paper that the revenue people won't release your name—that you are "just a lonely figure at one end of a statistical table." I don't care what your name is, as long as I can change it to mine. At present I have a wife and child—but when two people are really in love, how much do these things matter? Small barriers are soon overcome.

I can scarcely wait for the day when we look into each other's eyes across a statistical table set for two.

Bulb Flowers Grow Indoors

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Almost every night when I come home from work these days, my wife takes one look at the parcels in my arms and shrieks, "Oh no! Not more bulbs!"

She had good reason to complain, poor girl, for I just haven't got the moral stamina to walk past the bulb counters of the downtown stores without buying something.

There is something so fascinating about growing bulb flowers indoors, where you can watch them through every stage of their development, that I just can't resist buying more, even though every porridge bowl in the house is full of bulbs, and the children are beginning to complain now, and store them in your refrigerator—NOT in the freezing compartment, though—until you are ready to plant them up.

The ideal time to start these bulbs is from October 15 to November 15, but you can have a succession of bowls coming into bloom by planting at ten-day intervals from October 15 house is full of bulbs, and the children are beginning to complain now, and store them in your refrigerator—NOT in the freezing compartment, though—until you are ready to plant them up.

For best results, select good sized, single-nosed bulbs, and golden yellow, or so for indoor flowering is grand to the bowl. Fill the bowls about one-third full of clean pebbles, and with a bit the bulbs close together on these stones, and fill up with tap water until the water is just barely touching the base of the bulbs.

The bowls should be placed in a cool, dark room or basement room for seventeen days to stimulate good root growth, and are then moved to a sunny window in a foolproof, strictly a one-room where the temperature is maintained constantly between 60 and 70 degrees. You run into after flowering, as they are, of all kinds of grief if the room is no further use.

Perils Defied in Quest for Totem Poles

BY JAMES K. NESBITT

Saga of a search for totem poles, with skulls and bears about him while he worked, and a fierce storm that kept him in a pup tent for 24 hours, was told Thursday by Provincial Museum anthropologist Wilson Duff to B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society at Moss Street Arts Centre.

Mr. Duff, being a modest young man, wouldn't talk too much about his personal adventures, the amount of roughing it he had to do last summer in the Queen Charlotte Islands, he being more interested in the rapidly decaying totem poles, and methods that must be evolved to preserve them for future generations.

However, he has told this reporter, after much prodding and questioning, some of the details of what must have been a monumental trip of exploration. He was alone in long-deserted over-grown Indian villages; he camped out in pup tent and sleeping bag. He ate tinned foods and cooked bacon and eggs and beans on a camp fire. A raging southeast gale, carrying sheets of rain, drove him from the open Pacific, and Mr. Duff was forced to stay in his sleeping bag, in the pup tent, reading and dozing, and impatient. For two days he couldn't cook because of wind and rain, but at last the storm moderated so that he could get out of the pup tent and sleeping bag.

LIFE OF PAST
Mr. Duff started his talk: "Thinking of B.C. as we do, as a young, modern area, it comes as a shock to realize that we also have here the last decaying remains of a great and colorful way of life that existed before we invaded these shores. We invaders are slowly coming to recognize the artistic greatness of the former inhabitants, but almost too late—the last remnants of their art are lying in advanced stages of decay at deserted and isolated villages."

Mr. Duff was referring to the totems of the Haida Indians. He said: "The best Haida poles were carved 70 or more years ago and wood, left exposed to the elements outdoors, just does not last any longer than that."

In 1880, Mr. Duff estimates, there were between 350 and 400 of these, less than 40 have been preserved in parks and museums. Another 80 were chopped down and burned by the Indians. Mr. Duff said, when they came under the influence of missionaries. The rest were left to rot at the old villages, and of these, about 80 per cent have rotted away beyond all hope of salvage.

MUST SAVE REST
"Are we going to allow the rest to disappear completely?" Mr. Duff asked. "I think the next generation would not forgive us if we did."

Mr. Duff visited three Indian villages where Emily Carr went long ago to write and paint—Skedans, Cumsheewa, Tanoo. "A century ago," Mr. Duff said, "the 8,000 Haidas on the islands lived in about 15 villages. Today their 800-odd descendants live in only two—Skidegate and Massett."

Before introduced diseases began to cut cruelly into the population, the many villages were thriving places and when the first fur traders began to bring new wealth and better metal tools, larger and finer totem poles, and better constructed houses than had been possible before, appeared in great confusion.

DISEASE TOOK TOLL
"The people of Cumsheewa, Skedans and Tanoo and other southern Haida villages, were almost completely wiped out by smallpox, other diseases and alcohol. In the 1880s and 90s, the few survivors moved to Skidegate, deserting the old villages with their forests of totem poles."

Mr. Duff described Skedans of today: "Not much is visible from the water—traces of an old clearing, with a growth of young spruce, and a few, leaning, bleached poles or house timbers showing through the growth. Ashore, you can see more evidence of the old villages."

"There are depressions where the old houses stood, and timbers lying askew on the ground, densely covered with moss, some so decayed that they crumble underfoot. Some old timbers have spruce trees growing out of them."

"A search among the trees shows many totem poles, standing or fallen, in all stages of decay. Some are just mounds of wood mould, some are shells with rotten hearts split by expanding roots of trees. A few are still surprisingly sound. On these poles or fragments, the carving is sharp and clear."

"In this strange environment, the strength and beauty of Haida carving is strikingly impressive. Skedans was a village said, are still regarded by the Indians as the property of the families who erected them. Be- cause of the great decrease in population it is extremely difficult to find the nearest surviving relatives of each family. In most cases there are no survivors."

"Nevertheless," Mr. Duff said, "the owners of each pole must be found, and negotiated with. It is the general Indian opinion that these should be sold to some final amount for their poles. Ownership and sale must be approved by the band council and the Department of Indian Affairs. This job would take considerable time, and some money."

Mr. Duff made an appeal for the preservation of these poles, less carvings: "The time, expense and facilities required are

Rosenberg Involved In New Investigation

NEW YORK (AP) — Atom spy Julius Rosenberg was named by Senate investigators Thursday as mastermind of a spy ring that may have outlived him.

Rosenberg and his wife died in Sing Sing prison's electric chair last June 19 for wartime atomic espionage. He once worked for the Army Signal Corps, which has its headquarters at Fort Monmouth, N.J., radar.

Senator Joseph McCarthy claimed there is a "strong possibility" a Russian spy ring still is at Fort Monmouth, and that it could be a holdover from the Rosenberg days.

He added that his Senate investigation sub-committee is eager to talk to David Greenglass, the brother-in-law whose testimony sent Rosenberg to the electric chair.

Greenglass is serving a relatively light federal prison sentence of 15 years at Lewisburg, Pa.

Rosenberg worked for the Army Signal Corps in New York during the war. He was fired in 1945 as a suspected Communist.

Two sisters who were civilian employees of the signal corps during that period were also witnesses Thursday at closed hearings of McCarthy's sub-committee. McCarthy said both of them were asked about possible wartime connections with Rosenberg. The senator said the sisters refused to answer the questions on constitutional grounds of possible self-incrimination.

In hearings here this week, McCarthy has claimed to have uncovered "extremely dangerous espionage" that might "envelop the whole signal corps."

In recent weeks, 10 persons have been dismissed as security risks from Fort Monmouth.

Plane Takes Wrong Turn Over London

LONDON (AP) — A French Skymaster from Paris, with 37 passengers aboard received permission to land at London airport Wednesday night. The pilot soon radioed: "Landed safely."

"Put on your landing lights," tower. "We can't see you."

Then the control phone rang. "You lose a four-engine airplane," asked a voice. "This is Northolt. We have it here."

Northolt airport is eight miles from London airport.

The pilot set his wandering Skymaster down at the right airport 20 minutes later. He explained: "My compass was out and I took a wrong turning. Both airports were using the same direction runway."

Most greysers of the world are in western America, Iceland, and New Zealand.

Deadlines Set For Parcels To Soldiers

OTTAWA (CP) — Christmas is 71 days away but mailing deadlines for Christmas mail to Canadian troops abroad are fast approaching.

The defense department said Thursday the closing dates for Christmas mail addressed to the armed forces in the Far East are:

Parcel post and ordinary letters, in time to reach Vancouver not later than November 15; Prepaid airmail to the Far East, in time to reach Vancouver not later than December 5.

Deadlines for Christmas mail for Canadian troops in the United Kingdom and Continental Europe are:

Ordinary letters by surface ship, in time to reach Montreal not later than November 27; Parcel post by surface ship, in time to reach Montreal not later than November 25.

Although airmailed letters and parcels sent to Europe from Montreal usually are delivered in about two or three days, postal authorities cannot guarantee that service during the Christmas season.

Therefore, all mail intended for delivery to servicemen in the United Kingdom and Continental Europe by Christmas must be overseas by:

December 16 for air mail and surface letters, and December 8 for parcel post.

Weight limit on parcels to the Far East and Europe is 10 pounds.

Navy To Get Jets

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is planning to place orders in the United States for Banshee jet fighters to equip the new Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure, it was learned Thursday.

The Bonaventure is not expected to replace the carrier Magnificent until late in 1956, but the Fleet Air Arm is expected to start conversion to jets late next year. The Fleet Air Arm now uses propeller-driven Sea Fury fighters and anti-submarine Avengers.

It is believed the navy will require about 60 jets—25 aboard the carrier, 25 in support at Dartmouth, N.S., and another 10 for trainers. Total cost would probably be more than $20,000,000.

The Bonaventure will have the new angled flight deck which should cut down losses in deck landings.

U.S. Mission Planned To Deal with Iran Oil

LONDON (Reuters) — An official American mission will fly to Tehran this month to negotiate a resumption of the flow of Iranian oil to world markets, a reliable source here said Thursday. The mission, which has British and Iranian backing, will be led by Herbert Hoover Jr., state department oil expert.

Churchill Voices Pride, Humility at Nobel Award

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill, the greatest phrase-maker of his time, won the Nobel prize for literature Thursday, but he disclosed that he still thinks Kipling and Shaw were better writers.

The Swedish Academy, which awards the prize annually under the will of dynamite-maker Alfred Nobel, voted it to Churchill as both author and orator.

It cited his "mastery in historical and biographical writing, and the brilliant art of oratory with which he has stepped forth as a defender of high human values."

The award carries with it a prize of $33,840. The 74-year-old prime minister, who has been writing books for 35 years, received the news officially in London from Swedish ambassador Gunnar Hagglöf.

"I am very proud indeed to receive an honor which is international," Churchill said. "I have received several honors which are national, but this is the first time that I have received one which is international in its character. It is a literary distinction, and I am particularly proud of that."

He noted that Rudyard Kipling was the first Englishman to receive the Nobel prize in literature (1907) and that Bernard Shaw also had won it (1925).

"I certainly cannot attempt to compete with either of those," he said. "But I know them quite well and my thought was much more in accord with Mr. Rudyard Kipling than with Mr. Bernard Shaw. On the other hand, Mr. Rudyard Kipling never thought much of me, whereas Mr. Bernard Shaw has often expressed himself in most flattering terms."

Churchill said he keenly wanted to come to Stockholm to receive the prize from King Gustave in December. Other Nobel prizes, not yet announced, will be awarded at the same time.

The statesman has written 27 books since 1898. He once summed up his approach to writing: "Broadly speaking, the short words at the best, and the old words best of all."

He has used all kinds of words in his oratory. One of the best known of his many sentences came when he assumed Britain's prime ministry in the dark hours of 1940: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

Another from wartime: "We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets and in the hills. We shall never surrender."

And after the war, he coined a name: "From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the continent."

Churchill is the sixth Briton to win the Nobel prize in literature. Others were Kipling, Shaw, John Galsworthy, T. S. Eliot and Bertrand Russell.

O'Brien Gains Visa, Still Locked on Ship

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Michael Patrick O'Brien, the man without a country who has been wandering the world by sea for three years, found a home in the West Indies Thursday when the Dominican Republic granted him a visa for residence.

A representative of the Dominican embassy stamped O'Brien's visa, thus ending his long exile. But the 56-year-old vagabond did not know when he would be permitted to disembark from the French liner Bretagne.

The visa, which a New York magazine helped to obtain for him, visibly raised O'Brien's spirits to a high pitch.

Sitting in the cramped brig of the Bretagne, where he is locked while the ship is in port, O'Brien asked for a new valise to replace his outworn suitcase so he could make a presentable appearance. This was done.

O'Brien said that he is more than ready to settle in the Dominican Republic. In fact, he said he was willing to settle anywhere, after being stateless almost since the end of the Second World War.

Seattle Times To Publish Next Week

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The Seattle Times announced Thursday night it would publish Monday for the first time since it was hit by labor troubles July 16.

A statement issued by the newspaper management said: "The Seattle Times is happy to announce it will resume publication next Monday, October 19. The last of its labor troubles was settled this afternoon when the Pressmen's Union accepted a new contract negotiated jointly by the Times and the Seattle Post-Intelligencer."

The Times stopped publication July 16 when the American Newspaper Guild went on strike. The guild strike was settled October 3, but publication remained suspended while negotiations were carried on with mechanical craft unions whose contracts had expired during the strike.

All the craft-union contracts were negotiated jointly with the Post-Intelligencer.

Transmission by Pipeline

FORMAL opening of the Trans Mountain pipeline between Edmonton and Burnaby on Thursday brought British Columbia to the threshold of a new venture. Alberta crude oil will roll into the Vancouver area after its 700-mile journey through the Rockies to the Pacific Coast. Some $93,000,000 is represented in the construction of the 24-inch conveyor, which required 19 months to build. Three pumping stations can be used in moving the oil on its long journey, and a fourth is reported as nearing early completion. So it is a considerable undertaking along the line of new ventures, and one which will be watched with interest in this province.

As has been the case with several British Columbia operations recently, the building of the oil pipeline involved some "firsts" in advanced engineering practice. The flowline comes through wild terrain, akin to what pioneer railroad men faced when the Rockies were spanned long ago. The line enters Jasper National Park, crosses the Yellowhead Pass at 3,750 elevation, and follows the North Thompson River to Kamloops. From there it traverses the Cascade Range, and follows the line of the Fraser Valley into Burnaby. Apart from its economic implications, the construction of the pipeline has been a notable feat in itself.

It remains to be seen what effect the piping of Alberta crude oil into British Columbia will have on our domestic fuel and other markets, until now fed notably by seaborne cargoes in the tanker fleets. Certainly the additional source of supply should serve as an added protection, while there remains the hope that if there are savings in costs they will be shared with the consumers. British Columbia is paying a stiff price for its petroleum products.

Protecting Public Investment

THE British Columbia legislature's approval without dissent of the government's bill to regulate marginal development along new highways shows general recognition of the need to protect public investment. Uncontrolled stragglers of arterial highways built at enormous cost, paid for mainly by the motoring public, presents a serious problem to governments everywhere on this continent. There has been reluctance to restrain commercial enterprises from locating wherever they may believe there is business offering; yet as the density of motor traffic increases it has become obvious that trunk highways cannot fulfill their primary purpose when hemmed in by ribbon development. British Columbia breaks new ground in Canada by taking legislative action to save these expensive highways from degenerating into mere local roads.

The measure which the House endorsed in principle this week goes far beyond control of roadside commercial ventures. It is aimed also at preventing the cross-hatching of provincial highways with local roads likely to cause congestion of arterial traffic. Application of this restriction will affect the development projects of local authorities, but in explaining the intention of the bill the government has given assurance that there will be full co-operation with municipal councils and planning boards in organized districts.

This new legislation is framed in such a way as to place very wide authority in the hands of the minister of public works; but from a practical point of view it is difficult to see how control over ribbon development could be exercised otherwise. Situations are bound to arise which could not be foreseen in a single piece of legislation, and it will be necessary to deal with each case on its merits. So long as the act is interpreted fairly and reasonably there can be little valid objection to it, though the minister is likely to encounter opposition from the type of individual who sees a new highway built at public expense as a golden opportunity for commercial profit.

Business ventures already established alongside existing highways will not be interfered with, the government says. The restrictions will apply only to future highway construction. All who might contemplate locating alongside a new road thus are forewarned, and there should be no hardship to anyone. Altogether this appears to be a sound piece of legislation, and an essential one if waste of public money is to be prevented.

Too Many Horses?

ARE some car manufacturers these days tending to get too many horses under the bonnets of their vehicles? The question was asked of the Canadian Good Roads convention here this week by Mr. D. C. Gaskin, president of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, who wasn't joking. Mr. Gaskin asserted that 250 horsepower was a good deal to put into a power plant to drive one pleasure automobile; safe perhaps in the hands of the first buyer, less so with each transfer until the high-powered car wound up one day in the hands of a youth with a $100 bill and a desire for speed. The power, he said, would still be there, but the brakes and other safeguards might be gone.

The question is a sociological one at its roots. Gasoline to operate such engines, initial safeguards to control them, highways to travel on, perhaps all of the mechanics of the situation can be found without much difficulty, but how about the habits excessive power and consequent excessive speeds will teach mankind? It is not pleasant to vision the highways of a country as a place where the public may one day hold private speed tests, with 100, 200, perhaps 300 horses under the engine hood. One can think of many things that would be more necessary to this day and age than additional means of gratifying a sense of power, whether in responsible hands or not.

The test, as Mr. Gaskin pointed out, is that individual responsibility cannot be guaranteed. The majority of automobile accidents on the roads now arises from the use of speeds much higher than there is any real occasion for under normal circumstances. Ambulances and fire engines apart, why should the public be encouraged to race like demons? There will be many to agree with the Canadian manufacturer that there can quite easily be too many horses under one hood for man's own good.

SOME WISE HEADS

Sir.—May I call upon your co-operation in helping to dispel the utterly erroneous assertion of your correspondent of October 10, Mr. Dennis Allan Gavin?

The complete text of my letter to the Colonist on September 25, to which the writer refers, was not printed. Had the sentence been published embodying the anchor of hope placed on youth, to quote—"Truly there are some very wise heads amongst our youth and they may save us yet," there would not have been the need for the writer's use of the obnoxious word "prejudice" which he applied to me.

The defense put up by himself in the interest of the free mind in matters of political judgment is both admirable and comforting.

A CANADIAN FLAG

Sir.—In reference to several items of late on the Canadian flag situation, and opinions expressed. As Canadian citizens we should have our own flag to fly and to wave as well. As it is now Canada is a member of the Commonwealth of Nations and has a historical background with Britain that is known to all Canadians. But we are not in Britain, we are in Canada and are Canadians; and at the same time we are not Americans, even though we are fast becoming more like them than any other country in the world.

It surely is time our government gave us a flag to express this nationalism and not the British red ensign which is flown by British merchant ships. Even though proudly flown by them, it is still as foreign to us as a nation as the United States stars and stripes. So I give us a flag to call our own, to have and to carry away to battle in foreign lands, to fly from our masts and flag poles, to proclaim to the world that we are a nation of our own, not a parasite of any other country in the world, large or small.

It is no use either, in my opinion, to try to please the misguided national pride of any group in Canada when designing a flag. Something completely away from any existing flag or crest is what is required. Even if our flag is simply a solid field with a maple leaf or a beaver as a crest. We need a flag of our own to get the nationalism that every government, person of any responsibility, knows we lack.

GARDENING NOTES

Sir.—Most of the women in Canada can cook and the rest of them think they can, so there may not be a great demand for the cookery book you promised sometime ago to bring out.

On the other hand surely there would be a good demand for it if you published in book form the garden notes by Mr. Chesnut you have for sometime carried in the Colonist.

I am not a gardener but I am getting tired of hunting for, cutting out and saving these garden notes for a daughter-in-law with green fingers and I should think green toes, too, judging by her success as a gardener.

Do, please, publish these notes in book form, and possibly add a day or two to the life of one already too old to be bothered with newspaper cuttings. Even if they are worth more than the Colonist costs.

Operation Candor

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

JAN Hajdukiewicz, Polish member of the inspection team in Korea who gave himself up to an American officer and obtained asylum in the United States, was interviewed on his arrival in Washington a few days ago. He said that Poland was "99 per cent anti-Communist," but declared, "we ourselves cannot overthrow the Communist regime. To attempt it alone would be suicide. Without war there cannot be liberation."

Mr. Hajdukiewicz is to be congratulated on talking more realism than we have been hearing from our political leaders since the election campaign. The idea that the East European satellites can be liberated by psychological warfare is nonsense.

Poland and Czechoslovakia became independent states as the result of the First World War in which the multi-national Austro-Hungarian state was destroyed and partitioned, German territory in the east reduced, and Russia, defeated by Germany and in the throes of revolution and civil war, could be ignored. Poland, the other East European states, plus East Germany then became subjects within the Russian power orbit as the result of the Second World War, the demarcation line between West and East being the line held by the armies of the Western Allies and the Russians at the cessation of hostilities. That line, created, like the earlier one, by war, can, according to Mr. Hajdukiewicz, only be redrawn by yet another war.

There are, I am convinced, Poles, Czechoslovaks, Hungarians, Rumanians, Balts, and others, who would prefer war to their present condition and who, encouraged by the Voice of America and the Committee for a Free Europe, anticipate it. We doubt, however, that they constitute 99.50, or a considerably lesser per cent of the populations. If the choice were between freedom and subjection they would all choose freedom. The choice between freedom and a war in which they would certainly be battlegrounds is a quite different matter.

There also is the question of who would fight that war. Certainly not France, nor Great Britain.

The only conceivable possibility of securing ultimate Russian withdrawal from her present advanced position, without war, lies in diplomacy. Diplomacy would, however, require a quid pro quo from the West, regarding the future status of Europe as a whole—a status dubiously acceptable.

It is, however, perfectly futile to imagine that Russia would peacefully withdraw to permit an extension of NATO, a military alliance backed by the United States and including Germany, to include another hundred million people directly on her frontiers. No country, regardless of its form of government, in Russia's geographical position and with Russia's historic experience would permit it if she were strong enough to prevent it. It is as silly to think the contrary as it would be silly of the Russians to think that the United States would tolerate anti-American liberations in Canada or Mexico, whether backed by Russia or any other great power.

It is to be hoped that "Operation Candor"—to warn the American people of their military defense position—also will warn them of the limits and dangers of such psychological warfare as encourages hope for accomplishments that cannot peacefully be realized—and in the atomic age.

Soviet 'New Look' an Illusion

By W. N. EWER, from London

IN the first month or two after Stalin's death there were hopes and, indeed, signs that the new government intended to relax the worst rigors of the dictatorship, to restore some measure of civic liberty, to give the formal guarantees of the Constitution some reality, and to establish, to some extent, the "rule of law" in place of the arbitrary acts of police and officials. In those days the phrase "Soviet legality" was repeatedly used in the Soviet press to describe the new system that was to replace the old.

At the end of March a wide amnesty was granted by decree. Many thousands of convicted prisoners were released, thousands of others had their sentences halved. It was noted at the time that prisoners guilty of counter-revolutionary activities or of offenses against the state itself were excluded. But nevertheless the amnesty was a fact, and seemed a significant one.

At the same time there was the outspoken condemnation of the methods of the security police in the case of the Moscow doctors who had been falsely accused of attempting to poison prominent Soviet personalities, and who had been coerced into making untrue confessions of their guilt. These were promising signs. But even more hopeful was the announcement that there was to be an immediate and drastic reform of the penal code. For it is the penal code, with its provisions for sentencing citizens to imprisonment or exile "by the decree of an administrative organ"—in other words without any kind of trial—which had made nonsense of the constitutional guarantees.

Here, it appeared, was clear evidence of a new trend, a "new course" in Soviet policy. Six months have gone since the proclamation of the amnesty and the promise of reform of the penal laws. What progress has been made?

So far, though six months have passed, there is none to report. No more has been heard of the reform of the penal code. It was not mentioned at the August session of the Supreme Soviet. Mr. Malenkov, in a speech lasting nearly two hours, said not a single word about it, or about the constitutional rights of Soviet citizens, which it had been promised (in April) would now be "sacredly observed," or about "Soviet legality." The phrase, once recurrent day after day in the Soviet press, has been withdrawn from circulation.

Nor has there been any indication of any change in practice. There have been many denunciations of "criminals" and "scoundrels"—those who "framed" the doctors, ministers and party leaders in the smaller republics, declared guilty of "vile deeds" which must be "severely punished." Beria himself. One would surely have thought that "Soviet legality" would have required that, in accordance with Art. III of the Constitution, they would have been brought to public trial. But there have been no trials. The offenders have simply vanished.

It may be that they are all still being prepared for trial by the methods which were supposed, since the affair of the doctors, to have been abandoned as inconsistent with "Soviet legality." It may be that they have been tried in secret. It may be that they have been sentenced "by decree of an administrative organ." In any case, it seems clear that they have been dealt with in the manner that their like were dealt with under Stalin. There has been no change.

The reasons which have led the Soviet government first to promise and then to drop such reforms can only be surmised. Some are inclined to link it with the fall of Beria, to conclude that he was the advocate and protagonist of reform, and that he and it vanished simultaneously. Others incline to think that the promises were made by a new government uncertain of itself and seeking popularity, and that they were forgotten as soon as it felt secure. That has often happened in the past history of despotisms. But all this can only be speculation. Under Communist regimes changes of policy are never publicly discussed, and are rarely explained. They happen, and are accepted and applauded. In this also there has been no change since Stalin's death.

The satellite states, as always, follow the Soviet pattern. In the early summer there were expectations of a more "liberal" policy. By August all such expectations had vanished. In East Germany and in Czechoslovakia, for example, there has been a tightening and intensification of repression, especially in the trade unions. In Poland there is an intensification of the offensive against the Roman Catholic Church.

So, over all, one must conclude that neither in the Soviet Union nor in its satellites has there been any significant change since Stalin's death. There has been a modification of economic policy, especially in agriculture, under the duress of facts. But there has been no "liberalization," no change in the character of the regime. It remains as it was in Stalin's day. The "new look" which so many of us thought (not entirely without ground) that we could detect, has proved to be an illusion.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

WHEN you are in a hurry, everybody in the world seems to be taking his time. When you are prepared to take it easy, everybody in the world seems to be in a hurry.

There appears to be no average gait among humans. It would not be fair to strike the average between those of us who are in a hurry and those of us who are taking our time. It would be a false and misleading average, like most averages. Only a few years ago, it would have been possible to arrive at some sort of average speed of human beings. Unless you were well off, there were no means of being in a hurry. You could walk at three to four miles an hour. A horse and buggy would go at considerably better than that for short distances. Street-cars speeded up our gait, but only in highly restricted areas and within strict limits of the streets of the community. Around 1900 there was not much use being in a hurry. Not many people died of hypertension and heart complications in 1900.

Now, almost anybody can be in a hurry. If they haven't a car, they can hire a taxi in two minutes. If buses and trains aren't fast enough, they can buy a ticket on an aircraft. It is now practical, now possible, to be in a hurry. A new factor has entered into all our lives. After 5,000 years of knowing that there was not much use trying to hurry, we all have to readjust ourselves to the disturbing fact that we can hurry whenever we like and whenever it is demanded of us.

It is possibly a far more important alteration in human environment than social change, political change, freedom, emancipation, universal education. It is a change that affects our physical structure. If cows began to grow wings, if cabbages learned to speak, if telepathy were suddenly discovered to be a natural talent in all of us and we could no longer conceal our thoughts from one another, a more disturbing change could not be conceived than that human beings, who for countless ages, have never really had to hurry because they didn't have the means of doing so, are each year, each day and each hour being supplied as fast as science can devise it the equipment that imposes speed and hurry, even to stay where they are in the rat race.

$61,000,000 Gone

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

THE U.S. department of agriculture reports that the government's loss on its buying and selling operations to support farm prices during the fiscal year which ended June 30 amounted to $61,146,000. This is the visible part of what farm price support costs the public. The invisible part is the amount consumers pay for agricultural products above what they would pay in an unregulated market.

At this time when such an organization as the American Bankers' Association is adopting a resolution to urge the nation "to open its markets increasingly to foreign goods," it is worth recalling that much of the original impetus for aid to agriculture came from conviction that an unprotected agriculture was at a disadvantage in trading with tariff-protected industries.

It is almost impossible to compute how much a certain import duty costs the consumers of a nation. The costs of that type of subsidy are almost entirely invisible—in increased prices for goods. If we believe that all subsidies are essentially unnatural and unwholesome, then it is reasonable to hope that displeasure at the cost of farm-price supports will be bolstered by a willingness also to let more foreign-made goods into the United States through the tariff walls for farmers and others to buy.

If by tariff reduction and more flexible farm supports the costs of living could be gradually and more or less uniformly lowered, all would be the gainers.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

A building inspector reports that the United Nations has weepholes in the spandrels, which expresses what we might have said of it if we had the vocabulary.

A woman went to stay with a friend who lived in a rather primitive cottage. As she was preparing to retire, the hostess appeared at the door. "If you should want anything that you haven't got," she said, "just ask for it. We can show you how you can do without it."

Thanks to modern appliances, children no longer have to chop wood, haul water, or do the dishes. Also science gives their mothers more leisure time to spend with them in juvenile court.

A pediatrician points out that the youngest child in a family is apt to get all the diseases the older ones bring home from school. As if wearing his brothers' outgrown clothes weren't bad enough, he inherits the hand-me-down germs as well.

Higher Fee On Licenses Permitted

Municipalities will be able to charge higher trade license fees under an amendment to the municipal act presented to the Legislature Thursday.

Maximum license fees are raised from $100 to $200 for wholesalers; from $10 to $100 for laundries and dry-cleaners; from $50 to $100 for used car dealers; from $100 to $500 for shipyards; and from $100 to $200 for public utilities. All license fees are semi-annual.

Tax Power Expected

Reeve Sidney Pickles, told Central Saanich council Tuesday that he was optimistic that the municipality's claim for power to tax the equipment and machinery of the B.C. Electric plant at Brentwood would be allowed.

The reeve was reporting on a meeting with the provincial municipal affairs committee when he and the municipal solicitor attended recently.

BRIEFS PRESENTED

He explained that both the municipality and the company presented briefs and the municipality was allowed a rebuttal after the company's brief had been read.

Totem Group Receives Aid As Cash Donations Made

Things started to look a little brighter for the Totem Theatre group Thursday.

"Antigone" is turning out to be a big hit and revamped prices are continuing to bring in patrons. Thursday was the biggest night of the trial week with an attendance of 338.

MANY PHONE CALLS

Several phone calls were made to the Totem Theatre Thursday by people who wished to make donations to the struggling group. A number of cash donations were made of sums ranging from $5 to $20.

Others anxious to help inquired as to who the cheques should be made out to. Co-producer Thor Arngren said they should be made out to the Totem Theatre and urged that the cheques be clearly marked as to whether they are a donation or an investment.

100, he said.

The Colonist received a $50 cheque Thursday for the Totem Theatre from a theatre lover.

RETIRED COUPLE

"My husband and I are retired and are living on a small limited income so it is not too easy to donate this amount," an accompanying letter read.

"We are great lovers of the legitimate stage and we feel it would be a terrible loss to Victoria if we lose what appears to be the last chance of having our own repertory company here," the writer continued.

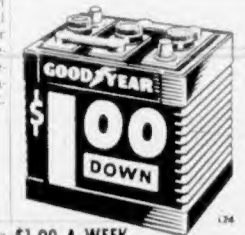

MUCH APPRECIATED

"We appreciate these donations very much. It is the little people who can't really afford it who have so far come to our aid," Mr. Arngren said.

"We would like to see larger amounts coming from industries, business men and prominent citizens who can afford it."

Repairing Car Requires Skill

BY FREDERICK C. RUSSELL

One trouble with the automobile budget is there's too much money left over at the end of the month. The do-it-yourself idea may be all right for the folk who have time to try combining a hobby with savings, but applied to complicated mechanical jobs on the automobile it looks like a quick way to invite trouble. Few motorists these days have facilities for service work on their own cars, even granted they have the know-how, and the result is that mechanics are busy undoing owners' mistakes. Even the adjustment of a spark plug these days calls for special skill. A round teller gauge must be used for accuracy, and a torque wrench for making sure the plugs are drawn down just so much and no more.

Motors that should be good for many additional miles of service with a moderate amount of oil consumption are made fit subjects for the junk pile by owners who picture replacing piston rings as a job on a par with changing a phonograph record. Every motorist at some time in his career yields to the temptation to take off the cylinder head and grind the valves. Today it usually ends with a bit of grinding of teeth.

There's plenty any owner can do around the car to keep it clean, tight and inspected, without going to the extreme of risking costly mistakes and disappointments. And so much to learn about how to drive the thing efficiently and safely!

NO GAIN WITH THIS

Something few understand about oil filters is an undesirable process known as "unloading." This is what happens when a filter's element gives back what it has already trapped out.

This can happen because of excessive use of additives or because of the nature of the filtering element itself. Where elements have compressible materials any sudden boost in oil pressure, such as occurs rather often when a cold engine is first started and put to heavy use, causes the element material to squeeze. Then some of the contaminants which it has trapped will get back into circulation.

TOO LAX ON CHECKING

Maybe you, too, have noticed that there seems to be less readiness on the part of filling station attendants to check your oil. I've bought a lot of gas lately and am surprised that no one has volunteered to lift the hood.

A lot of oil sales are being lost this way, and many an engine is being handicapped.

Checking with one attendant I got the explanation that too many people seem resentful when asked about the sub-hood situation. They take the position that they are being pushed into additional purchases. He also pointed out that with so many radiators equipped with pressure caps there's less checking of cooling systems on the open road.

MECHANIC JOE SPEAKING

"We have a very simple test for loose engine mounts here in the shop. All we do is disconnect one of the spark plug wires and put tape over its end. Then we run the engine and watch its action.

"It will shake more than if it were running on all of its cylinders but if the mounts are loose, or if one is broken, some engines will make a snapping noise. If the engine really is loose it will shake quite violently when accelerated."

STILL A MYSTERY

It is unfortunate that car manufacturers ever had to tell the public that modern automobiles have a generator regulator. It is just one more thing for motorists to worry about and tamper with.

Since the device has been discovered, however, it may be well to point out that much of its trouble develops from poor grounding and loose connections. Another important point is the need for making any and all adjustments at room temperature (around 70 degrees). You can fasten a thermometer to the regulator so that its bulb contacts the latter's case, using adhesive tape for the job.

As I point out in my book, "Car Care," too many of us try to get better timing by merely changing the position of the distributor body. We do not seem to realize that the first step is to check the breaker points. Timing will be advanced if points are gapped too wide, whereas a too reduced gap will retard timing.

All this involves an understanding of what is meant by "cam dwell." All this sounds complicated, but I think I have cleared it up in the book. It's enough to point out that every degree change in dwell results in a similar change in timing.

WHAT'S YOUR TROUBLE?

Q. I get a clanking noise when the automatic transmission is shifting up, and also when I start off in reverse. Is this an indication of worn universal joints?—J. L. N.

A. No. If the joints were loose you'd hear them when starting forward as well, and at cylinder head and grind the valves. Today it usually ends with a bit of grinding of teeth.

Q. Is it normal for a new engine to have a sticky valve?—W. M.

A. This often happens because of subnormal clearances between the valve stems and their guides. In the long run it will be an advantage because the guides will not show wear as quickly. Ease up the stickage with additives in the oil.

Q. Which is the safest gear for holding a car when parked on a hill?—W. R. G.

A. Don't trust any gear, but reverse is always safest because it is the lowest gear. It doesn't make any difference whether the car heads up hill or down the engine has the same compression whether it turns in its normal rotation or reversed.

Q. I have trouble getting into gear for a start when the car has been running awhile. Never get this clashing when the engine is cold or first started up. Why should temperature have anything to do with it?—Win. L. K.

A. Looks like the clutch hub is too tight on this job. When the engine has been operating heat is transferred to the clutch.

Q. After performing for many thousands of miles without the slightest noise the brakes of my car now seem to be developing the habit of squealing. I believe it is more or less limited to one brake—the right front as far as I am able to determine. An adjustment hasn't helped.—T. T. U.

A. It is possible that the coil spring wrapped around the drum of this particular brake has dropped off. Purpose of the coil is to check vibration of the drum.

Q. Is there any reason why I should not use the old anti-freeze drained from the cooling system last spring. It is clear and tests sufficient for protection down to 10 below zero.—F. L. D.

A. The old solution may form scale from slow leakage of combustion gases past the cylinder head gasket. If you continue using it you may wind up with a leaky gasket. In all cases use fresh solution.

Q. Oil is working up into the distributor of my car. What can I do to check this?—H. N.

A. First try cleaning out the crankcase vents and the oil filler pipe. The crankcase may be building up too much pressure.

New Structure Set

Car Insurance Rates Stiff for Poor Risks

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new automobile insurance rate structure with stepped-up levies against accident-prone and irresponsible drivers will go into effect in British Columbia November 1, insurance underwriters announced Thursday.

Under the new plan, a motorist with two or more traffic convictions on his record may be charged two or three times as much as an accident-free driver for the same amount of insurance protection. Impaired, drunken or reckless driving convictions will bring a 100-per-cent jump in premiums.

The rate increases concern only public liability and property damage coverage. Collision, fire and theft coverage is not involved.

The new rate structure is incorporated in changes in the assigned risk plan under which the 150 companies writing car insurance in B.C. share the burden of providing coverage to motorists considered poor insurance risks.

Factory Expenses Increase

DETROIT (AP)—Despite increasing development of automatic manufacturing processes, production costs in the auto industry still are rising.

Probably greater refinement and more advanced engineering built into the automobile has something to do with higher costs. But there are basic reasons, too. Materials and certain labor cost more.

These things should portend higher price tags for the forthcoming new model cars. Yet few industry analysts expect price increases. Most of them say prices will be unchanged and even modestly lower in some instances.

They base their view on the competitive merchandising era that promises to remain with the industry for some time. Top industry executives seem agreed now that car sales will require more effort next year than at any time since the Second World War.

At the same time these executives emphasize their confidence that no overall slump lies ahead of the industry. There has been no drop in buying power and none is in prospect, they say.

One interesting 1954 prospect is that the luxury car producers will engage in as keen a competitive battle as the remainder of the industry.

NOT ALWAYS TRUE

This, of course, hasn't always been true of the industry's overall merchandising. For much of the last two decades Cadillac has dominated this field. But more recently other makes like Chrysler with its Imperial, Ford with its Lincoln and Buick with its Roadmaster have sought an increasing share of the top market.

Even now all these producers have more customers than cars. To some extent this will carry over into the 1954 model year. Cadillac, Chrysler and Lincoln have had to curtail output because of parts shortages.

Cadillac and Lincoln have been hit by the shortage of hydraulic transmissions and Chrysler has had to thin out production because of the mid-summer Detroit tool and die strike. Packard's production scheduling was also upset as an aftermath of the tool and die tie-up.

Magnates Bid for Small Model Leadership

Car Trade Battle in Europe

LONDON (AP)—A new trade battle has broken out among European automobile makers. They are scrambling to capture the growing market for the low priced "baby" passenger car that is cheap to run and can sneak quickly through tangled big city traffic.

The baby car as a key to cashing in on a still largely untapped market.

Britain's manufacturers are unveiling this month the new models they hope will garner a bigger share of the small car export market from the present leaders in Germany, Italy and France.

LEAD LOST

After introducing the first baby car 30 years ago Britain's motor industry lost the lead after the Second World War to continental light models such as the Italian Fiat, the small German Volkswagen and the French Renault.

The two four-seater babies which run on one to four cylinders and sell for about $1,100 are mainly aimed at the European buyer who has not been able to afford a standard-sized car. They squeeze out up to 50 miles on a gallon which is essential for the European who pays about twice what his North American cousin does for gasoline. Many of them are fairly comfortable even on long drives and particularly the British models are smartly styled. On continental highways, they often are seen overtaking their big brothers at speeds ranging over 50 miles an hour.

The British manufacturers are casting a worried eye at the sensational post-war comeback of the German automakers, particularly at the expansion plans and sales record of Volkswagen, makers of the "people's car" which Adolf Hitler once promised German families.

Volkswagen's big seller is a popular four-seater which has an air-cooled four-cylinder motor in the rear of its unique elliptical body. It is produced in two models—export and standard, which cost $1,228 and $888 respectively.

MORE CHROMIUM

The export model has a synchromized gear shift, more chromium and some additional gadgets. It can speed along at 70 miles an hour and get about 30 miles to the gallon, which is low compared to the other babies.

The Volkswagen output next year is to be raised to 1,000 a day as compared to 730 now. Although Volkswagen is attempting to build up its sales all over the world, the traditional German car markets of Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, Holland and Sweden still take 75 per cent of the exports.

The smallest of the German cars is the Lloyd 400. It has a one-cylinder, two-stroke engine which drives the front wheels. It can cruise at 46 miles an hour, gets nearly 50 miles to the gallon and carries four persons in its steel-plywood body. It sells for $817.

TWO ITALIAN MODELS

The only two Italian small cars on the foreign market are made by Fiat in Turin. They are the Topolino little mouse export model with the 4 CV Renault, which is the most popular car at home and the 2 CV Citroen.

The four-cylinder 4 CV Renault comes in a variety of models including a sports convertible and an ordinary sedan and has a maximum speed of around 60 miles an hour. It sells for 430,000 francs, $1,285.

Little Price Change Expected For Most of 1954 Model Cars

Most of Victoria automobile dealers expect little change in prices when the 1954 models reach their showrooms.

Others have received no word from their eastern manufacturers as yet.

First models to appear in Victoria will be from the Chrysler Corporation. Its 1954 Chrysler, Plymouth, Dodge and DeSoto models are expected in Victoria before the end of November. The majority of the other dealers do not expect their '54 machines before December or the first of the year.

Among those who have indicated a slight price drop are Hillman and Hudson. The Rootes Motor Company, maker of the Hillman Minx, has reported a price reduction of $56 for four models.

These reductions are made possible by a steadily increasing volume of sales in this country. Sales of Hillmans in the first eight months of this year are 27 per cent above those for the same period in 1952.

The price cut reduces the Hillman sedan from $1,905 to $1,849, the convertible from $2,075 to $2,019, the estate car from $2,155 to $2,099, and the Commer delivery van from $1,647 to $1,591. Prices are for port of entry and include heater and air-conditioner, flashing turn signals and bumper guards.

Hudson has marked down its three-wasp models by about $54 and its two Hollywood "hardtops" by about $107. In addition, it has a new price leader in its Jet two-door utility sedan, which is making its debut in the 1954 line. Advertised delivery price is $1,836.75 in the United States.

Dodge prices closely parallel those of '53 where the models are comparable. Reductions of $5.25 have been reported in the Coronet V-8 sports coupe and convertible, and the Coronet V-8 station wagon is down $10.50.

Club To Hear Air Marshal

Air Marshal Sir Philip Livingston will be guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel, Friday, October 23, at 12:15 p.m.

Sir Philip will speak on "The Sound Barrier as a Medical Problem."

He was born at Cowichan Bay and was educated in England, being a graduate of Jesus College, Cambridge.

Sir Philip served with the Royal Navy for a short period and immediately after graduation in 1917, joined the RAF, retiring as medical director-general in 1951.

He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, London and Edinburgh, and was honorary surgeon to His Majesty George VI.

Boy's Return 'Mysterious'

He wasn't able to tell questioners where this happened or what the man painted.

Police officers took the blue jeans, shirt and slippers he was wearing when he vanished and the search for the "fat man" began.

Dr. David M. Boyd, called in to check Richard's condition after he had been fed cookies, foster mother, said the boy seemed to be in good physical condition.

A few minutes later the boy was outside playing.

The huge search, conducted by more than 400 servicemen, police and civilians, began late Wednesday night after Richard had been missing for several hours.

By dawn Thursday, the whole area was being combed by a huge search party.

Victoria police officers dragged Bowker Creek and Smith's reservoir in case the boy had tumbled in while playing.

Fields, homes, streets, basements, and bush area were all carefully searched throughout the night and following day for some trace of the lad.

When it became obvious he wasn't in the immediate neighborhood, searchers began to advance kidnapping theories.

Deputy police chief John Mercer and many members of the Victoria police force were still at the scene of the search when Richard came home.

Mrs. Poole, the boy's mother, was relieved and fired after going without sleep for more than 24 hours.

Mr. Poole, Richard's father, was also at the scene of the hunt all during the night.

Under Capt. Gordon Brown, RCN, and army lieutenants G. Jameson, Dr. Campbell and Charles Pachel, servicemen and policemen covered the district completely.

Mrs. Edna Cowley, 1655 North Dairy Road, kept her home open all night, serving coffee and sandwiches to the searchers.

Rev. Canon George Riddle conducted the Masonic funeral rites in McCall Brothers' funeral home.

Interment was in the Royal Oak Burial Park under the auspices of No. 84 Henderson Lodge, AF & AM.

Palbearers were Charlie Laverne, Cecil Laid, Jim Bostock, Laverne LeHuquet, Bob Smith and Norman Findler.

Included in the congregation were many local automobile dealers and their staffs and members of the Victoria Lions Club.

Three extra cars were employed for the flowers and nearly 100 sprays were sent.

At the time of his death, Mr. Thackray was service manager at Wilson Motors.

Born in England he came to Victoria from Moose Jaw, Sask., in 1936.

Pianist's Program Unusual

BY RAY BAINES

Two long works whose interest was more in their test of the pianist's ability than in their musical interest.

The first was a modern Sonata by Kabalevsky full of furious discord and gentle dissonance. As an opener it was received a little coolly by the audience whose enthusiasm was mostly for the pianist's amazing technique.

A Brahms "Variation and Fugue" on a Handel theme was usual was his program.

NO SCHUMANN

Considered the world's greatest interpreter of Schumann, Moisewitsch played no Schumann. Although the second part of the program contained the inevitable Chopin and Liszt works, the first part featured

New Mortgage Plan May Boost Housing Costs

16 Daily Colonist Victoria, B.C., Fri., Oct. 16, 1953

OTTAWA (C.P.)—The proposed new mortgage plan, which would allow a borrower to pay a higher interest rate on National Housing Act loans, is understood to be one of the many features of the new housing legislation to be presented at the next Parliament which opens November 17.

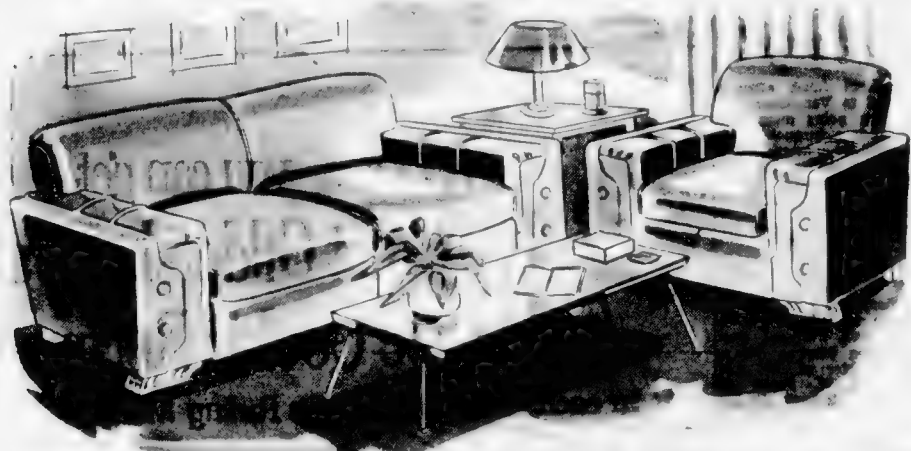

Mortgage insurance premiums under the proposed scheme will be based on the face value of the loan, but it is expected that they will be lower than under the current plan. The new plan would allow a borrower to pay a higher interest rate on National Housing Act loans, which would be offset by a reduction in the mortgage insurance premium.

Completing an ocean-to-ocean trip by car, George Cummings left and Donald Ford arrived at the 44th annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association at the front doors of their own in the Pacific Ocean. The trip began with the dipping of their wheels in the Atlantic at New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

Reuther Gets Big Oration

By Colonist Staff Reporter

WALTER REUTHER, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, delivered a powerful oration at the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association in Victoria, B.C., today.

LOYALTY PROBLEM

Reuther, who spoke for over an hour, touched on the loyalty problem which has been a major issue in the U.S. since the outbreak of the war.

He said that the American people have a right to know who is working for them, and that the government has a right to know who is working for it.

PEACE POLICY

Reuther also touched on the peace policy of the United States, and said that the American people have a right to know what the government is doing to bring about peace.

ORGANIZATION URGED

Reuther urged the Canadian Good Roads Association to continue its work for the improvement of roads in Canada.

IWA Rejects Job Plan as 'Red' At Meeting

By Colonist Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 17.—The International Workers of America (IWA) today rejected a job plan proposed by the British Columbia Federation of Labour Unions.

NON CONCURRENCE

The IWA delegates at a meeting in Vancouver today said that the job plan proposed by the B.C. Federation of Labour Unions was in non-concurrence with the IWA's own policy.

The job plan proposed by the B.C. Federation of Labour Unions was to have the IWA represent the workers in the B.C. Federation of Labour Unions.

"OF MICE AND MEN"
By John Steinbeck
Canada's favorite dramatic entertainment

Have you tried
Captain Morgan
Recently?
It's richer, robust, full-bodied... blended to satisfy the taste of British Columbians. Try it... you'll like Captain Morgan Black Label Rum.
Fully Aged in Small Oak Casks
Captain Morgan
Black Label
RUM
Blended in Distillation from Carefully Selected
Barrelled Blends

Francis COVERS THE
BIG TOWN
Donald and Francis are back again!
it's NEW and it's ALL
HILARIOUS!
That
rascals
Talking Mule and his slap-happy pal are mixed up with a racketeer's mob and a beautiful big-city siren!
DONALD O'CONNOR
and YVETTE DUGAY

Winning Contract

By Howard Schenken and Richard L. Frey

BRIDGE QUIZ
The sequence of partner's bids sometimes reveals his distribution so accurately that you are enabled to decide the best final declaration...
ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
(a) Six clubs. Partner has at most a singleton diamond. You cover this loser with your ace. Presumably, on his strong bidding, he has sufficient top cards in the other suits to limit your losers to not more than one trump spades after the first round might be enough to produce thirteen tricks at hearts, where the limit might be only twelve in clubs.
(b) Five hearts. Your ability to trump spades after the first round might be enough to produce thirteen tricks at hearts, where the limit might be only twelve in clubs.
(c) Four spades. Partner should not expect more than three spades on this bidding. Perhaps with your singleton in hearts, spades may be the easiest game contract—especially if partner is able to discard a club loser on one of your diamonds. If played at club, however, there is a danger that your king-queen of diamonds may be of little value.
(d) Four no-trumps. (Black wood). If partner can show the slam ideas, or that if he does missing three aces, you will bid he'll use a Blackwood four-no-trumps and ask for trump bid to let you show your lack of aces and also to keep the bidding at the five-club level.
(e) Four hearts. Without an ace it may be best for you to play at the cheaper 10-trick contract. You hope that 14, was designed for a chorus partner, won't suddenly get of flutes.

Martin Criticized Over Arrears

Health and Welfare Minister Eric Martin ran into a barrage of criticism before his bill to amend the Hospital Insurance Act passed second reading in the legislature Thursday.

Main criticism centred on the section of the bill giving the government the right to cancel hospital insurance premium arrears. Last May Mr. Martin "suspended" all arrears, amounting to about $2,200,000. These and any subsequent arrears can now be wiped out entirely, Mr. Martin said.

"WORD MAGIC"

Robert M. Strachan (CCF, Cowichan-Newcastle) hit at Mr. Martin's "word magic" which he said had left press and public with the definite impression that arrears were completely canceled last May. This, he said, was "government by press-release."

Five months after the fact the bill to "try to make an honest woman out of B.C.H.I.S." he said.

Liberal leader Arthur Laing agreed it was "a bill to validate wrongdoing."

CCF, Liberal and Conservative speakers demanded government action to provide relief from premium payments for low-income groups and called for compulsory payment of premiums by all others.

Mr. Martin said the bill was designed to allow for smooth and efficient functioning of the government's new simplified premium payment plan.

Since his announcement in May 20,875 people had registered under B.C.H.I.S.; of these an estimated 7,879 were delinquent when arrears were suspended, Mr. Martin said.

The opposition was "not co-operating, just trying to stir up trouble," he charged.

Anthony Garzavito (CCF, MacKenzie) said "the CCF would gladly co-operate to make hospital insurance work. 'We wish godspeed to the government,' he said.

Liberal leader Laing said the $2,000,000 in arrears which the government had "canceled" was money which belonged to the people of B.C.

H. J. Bruch (S.C.-Esquimalt), a former Hospital Insurance Service clerk, said the service was "a mess and a muddle" under Social Credit took over.

"This cry about forgiving $2,000,000 in arrears is just so much poppycock," he said. "It cost us more to keep track of those arrears and keep them on our books than it was worth."

Revised Aid System For Education Urged

By Colonist Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Provincial and federal governments were urged Thursday by the Trades Union Congress (TUC) convention here to take a new look at financial support of education.

The federal government was asked to assume some costs of education. The B.C. government should see that grants are adequate and apportioned on a population basis, that grants are subject to review as educational and population requirements require.

B.C. Teachers' Federation president James Jenks, New Westminster, said that federal aid is needed to make equal opportunity in education across Canada.

There is not equal opportunity in B.C., he said, the cost per pupil not being balanced. Costs at Williams Lake are double those at Surrey, he noted.

There is not equality of the tax burden, Mr. Jenks continued, and the present grants are inequitable. Past proposals of the government, on which it fell, were an improvement but "froze present inequalities and introduced new inequalities," he added.

At present in B.C. some schools are open only under allowance for uncertificated teachers and entrants to normal schools are decreasing, mainly for financial reasons, he added.

The resolution committee said it had found, on investigation, that the 3 per cent sales tax distribution is not related now on a per capita basis. Oak Bay has 10 adults to one child, Rossland a four to one ratio, it was said. Oak Bay receives $115 per pupil and Rossland $4.

In Burnaby the mill rate is 55 for education. If the grants had been applied to education costs, as the 3 per cent tax was originated for with social security, the rate on education would be nine mills, it was reported.

The TUC will ask the government for representation on the school curriculum committee so that knowledge of the trade union movement can be inserted in any new curriculum.

Slump Seen In Building Of Houses

Gordon S. Shipp, president of the National House Builders' Association, said in Victoria Thursday that he foresees a sag in house building.

"Work stoppages and unemployment in the housing industry are likely unless life insurance companies and other lending institutions can be induced to adopt a more positive attitude regarding their role in mortgage financing," he said.

Mr. Shipp addressed a meeting arranged by the Victoria Contractors' Association, at the Monterey Thursday. He was accompanied by John Caulfield Smith, secretary-manager of the house builders' association.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said that legislation would be introduced at the next session of parliament to enable chartered banks to make mortgage loans.

"Builders have assumed that until then, life insurance companies and other lending institutions would continue to offer loans under the National Housing Act. This may be wishful thinking," Mr. Shipp commented.

Full effect of the fall-off was not yet noted by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and might not be felt for several weeks, he said.

"The National House Builders' Association heartily approves the entry of banks into the mortgage-lending field," he stated.

Plaque Marks Pipeline Completion

VANCOUVER (CP)—A simple plaque, marked "Burnaby bears the colorful T-M emblem terminal" was unveiled Thursday on completion of the $33,000,000 Trans-Mountain oil pipeline from Edmonton to Vancouver.

Oilmen from the United States and Canada were present at the unveiling ceremony at the suburban Burnaby tank farm, eight miles east of Vancouver.

But no oil flowed through the 24-inch pipeline designed to carry the black gold from Alberta British Columbia bound. It is designed for an ultimate daily capacity of 200,000 barrels "on stream." Welders worked throughout the day on the break and the first oil was expected to move into the big Burnaby tanks late Thursday.

The plaque has a carved picture of the pipeline as it snakes through the mountains. It is built through strategic locations along the big line great valves, weighing 9,000 pounds and costing $15,000 each, regulate the flow. They are located at distances varying from 10 to 20 miles.

For genial H. H. Hal Anderson, vice-president and general manager of Trans-Mountain, declaration day marked the end of months of high pressure work. A helicopter patrol will be maintained along the pipeline and in the winter months snowmobiles and "snow-cats," motor driven vehicles, will be used by patrol crews.

CITY BOY'S DISAPPEARANCE STILL PUZZLE

Happiness Reigns When Boy Returns

Main Clue Collapses

Child Recalls Very Little, Describes 'Fat Old Man'

Mystery still shrouds the circumstances leading to the return home Thursday of a five-year-old Victoria boy whose disappearance touched off one of the largest searches in the city's history.

Police said late Thursday that a man earlier thought to have brought Richard Poole, 1627 Burton, back to the house was merely a city businessman looking at a vacant home for sale across the street.

Five-year-old Richard, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cluff, disappeared from his home shortly after 5 p.m. Wednesday. He returned mysteriously 22 hours later.

The boy, happy and unharmed, told his parents and police that he had been picked up the previous afternoon from the Clawthorpe Park playground, where he was waiting to be called in for supper on Wednesday, by a "fat old man in a grey car."

This man took him to another park and told him he was going to get "some more kids." Later the man let him out of a car "near a lot of mailboxes and stores," he said. He was

Police Scatter Crowd

GEORGETOWN (Reuters)—Riot police Thursday night prevented the first attempt to hold a mass meeting here since gatherings were banned under emergency regulations in the colony.

Police were doubled on Georgetown's waterfront following intelligence reports that subversive elements opposed to the forced resignation of the People's Progressive government of Dr. Cheddi Jagan have a definite arson plot.

A flying squad of 20 men armed with machine guns, rifles, clubs and tear gas, raced to Bourda Green, Georgetown's main park, where knots of people had gathered awaiting a signal to join up for a meeting.

Police said they had learned an unnamed leader of the People's Progressive party was to have addressed the crowd.

Mass meetings were banned in the tense situation following the suspension of the constitution last Friday, when the six ministers of the leftist party were ousted on grounds that the PPP was attempting to form a Communist state.

Picketed police at the waterfront had orders to shoot on sight at any sign of trouble.

Police received information Thursday that subversive elements have a definite plot to fire the waterfront and laid in stocks of inflammable materials for the purpose months ago.

Earlier Thursday, police raided about 20 houses, some of them belonging to teachers and civil servants, in their search to find evidence of an alleged plot to turn the colony into a Communist state. Books and documents were seized.

Girl's Body Found

IRROQUOIS, Ont. (CP)—The nude body of an attractive teenage girl was found in a ditch late Thursday.

Police said she had been stabbed several times and possibly shot.

They said they believe the body was thrown from a passing car into the ditch beside a county road eight miles north of this Cornwall area town.

The girl was unidentified. Inspector J. Reavley, in charge of the provincial police at Cornwall, said the girl was between 17 and 18 and of slim build.

Two children on their way home from school found the body.

It turned out that the driver of the car had been looking at a house for sale across the road from the Cluff home.

The map was amazed that he had been the object of a police search.

He said he saw a car draw up outside the Cluff home and noticed that a little boy got out. He had paid no particular attention to it, he said.

Mrs. Cluff and Mrs. Thelma Poole, mother of the boy, swarmed him with affection and food while curious searchers and police officers tried to find out where he had been.

Smiling and apparently none the worse for his night away from home, Richard told questioners he had been "up there" pointing in the direction of the water tower on Smith's Hill.

The little boy's recollection of the time away from home seemed to be quite vague.

"The man told me to lie on the grass," he said at one point. The next event he seemed to really remember was the "fat man" taking a brush and black paint and painting something.

Legislature Expected To Finish Saturday

British Columbia's 24th legislature is expected to end its first session Saturday morning.

The House is expected to wind up the government's business tonight after a grueling week of debate on more than 50 bills.

A number of opposition bills and resolutions still on the order paper may also be dealt with at the same time.

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace could then give royal assent to the passed bills and prorogue the house Saturday morning.

No sittings of the legislature will be held Friday morning or afternoon because cabinet members and many MLAs will be in Vancouver to attend the funeral of Mrs. Tilly Rolston, late minister of education.

The House will sit again at 8:30 p.m. Friday to finish its business.

This schedule, however, could be upset by weather. The cabinet and other members plan to fly back from Victoria to their homes by chartered plane. If the plane should be held up by bad weather, the session might run over into next week.

Rhees Unhurt By Throng

SEOUL, Korea (Friday) (UP)—President and Mrs. Syngman Rhee narrowly escaped serious injury today when they were mobbed by hysterical war widows and mothers during a memorial service for Korean war dead.

The screaming women and old Korean men swarmed around the 77-year-old chief executive and his wife as they left Seoul stadium for the return trip to the presidential mansion.

The president and his wife were jostled and pushed by the hysterical women as they attempted to reach their automobile. National police and the presidential bodyguard finally cleared a path through the crowd.

There were no words, just kisses and happy tears for five-year-old Richard Poole, 1627 Burton, missing from home almost 24 hours Thursday. Korean PWs Balk at Talks PANMUNJOM (AP)—Anti-Communist North Korean prisoners of war today refused to come out of their stockades and listen to Communist attempts to coax them back.

At noon the 1,000 anti-Red North Koreans scheduled to meet Red interviewers at 10 a.m. were standing fast in their compounds in the Korean neutral zone.

Indian troops surrounded the North Korean stockade but by noon had made no attempt to force out the prisoners.

It was the second day that anti-Communist prisoners had balked at attending explanation sessions. Thursday, however, 500 Chinese finally faced the Red interviewers after more than seven hours of hanging back.

Only 10 of those went back to the Communist side. The other 490 elected to stay on the side of the United Nations in a screaming face-to-face repudiation of Communism.

There were sporadic demonstrations—shouting, parading, singing—among the North Korean prisoners this morning. But observers said it did not equal the noise kicked up by the Chinese before they agreed to listen to explanations.

A spokesman for the Indian custodial command said Indian officers had met with the Korean prisoner leaders Wednesday night and obtained an agreement that PWs would listen to the Red explainers.

Yugoslavia's ruling federal executive council, at a two-hour meeting in Belgrade, unanimously approved the stern measures President Tito has set in motion with the avowed aim of preventing Italian annexation of the territory's Zone A.

In Rome, Premier Giuseppe Peella told the British, U.S. and French ambassadors that Italy's position is unchanged. Peella said Italy will sit down to talks with Yugoslavia only if Italian troops are allowed into Zone A.

U.S. State Secretary Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault flew to London for talks with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on Trieste and other world problems.

Dulles talked with Churchill and Eden Thursday.

Aides reported Dulles and Eden may decide to delay the withdrawal of the 7,000 British and American troops in Zone A, originally planned to be completed by November 30.

Tito has declared any movement of Italian troops into Zone A to replace them would be aggression and threatened to use his armed forces, newly reinforced within Zone B, to bar them. Italy has made it clear she is willing to give assurances that she will not use force in attempting to settle her territorial differences with Yugoslavia.

In New York, the UN Security Council debated a Russian demand that it take up again the matter of naming a neutral governor for Trieste, which was set up as a free territory under the Italian peace treaty of 1947.

The appointment of a governor isn't what either Italy or Yugoslavia wants now.

Police Order Grave Opened

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Prosecutor John Downs has ordered the grave in St. Joseph, Mo., from which the body of kidnapped Bobby Greenleaf was recovered one week ago, be reopened.

He ordered the grave reopened, Downs said Thursday night, "just on an offchance that Marsh's body might be in there."

He referred to Thomas Marsh, the missing ex-convict on whom confessed kidnaper Carl Austin Hall first blamed the shooting of the six-year-old son of millionaire auto dealer Robert C. Greenleaf.

Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady of St. Joseph have since admitted the FBI said, shooting Bobby in neighboring Johnson county, Kan.
